

BPL appears to have the potential of creating radio frequency interference to both amateur and commercial communications. Further research should be done prior to any FCC authorization of BPL to determine the potential and/or extent of its interference to communications services.